TWENTY-FIFTH SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME

Sept. 19/20, 2009

The innocence that Jesus glorifies in children is the wholeness of not yet being wounded, of still being able to trust or not yet having one's heart hardened by sin, wound & disillusionment. To acquire the heart of a child is therefore to try to move beyond the things that have wounded & hardened us. The adult heart tends to live the illusion of self-sufficiency: I can provide for myself. Not until our souls are mellow & we can grip the stronger hand of God & become like children will we be able to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven.
